

The Path of the Valkyries (in-game document)

This ritual allows participants to temporarily visit Valhalla, but does not permanently consign their souls there. Whenever someone who has previously been part of this ritual arrives at Limbo, they may choose to go to Valhalla rather than following the usual instructions at Limbo.

A group of at least two people gather together in a dry location. They must all chant together:

Battle maids,
Steel sitters,
Fate weavers,
I called to thee.
Alone, inside myself,
I ask for your power,
To regain,
To renew,
To release.
Destruction visits me,
And the whirlwind awaits.
But your hair is soft,
Wafting gently in the turmoil,
Curling slightly at the ends.
And the rains come, slick and fast,
Hard and swift,
Washing away the blood,
Washing away the tears.
My soul is cleansed,
My spirit renewed.
I honor thee, Valkyries,
Waelcyrrie,
Walachuria.
Your glimmering lights fill me with hope,
Gifting my heart with the knowledge of freedom.

Each participant must then use a weapon to fight gloriously, at the end of which all participants are dead. They then proceed together to Valhalla (Room F) instead of any normal effects of dying.

Involuntary Version

If there are at least three voluntary participants, two of the participants can be restraining someone, and the third can kill the restrained person, and then the restrained person comes along as well despite not participating.